5-STAR HOTEL LOBBY — FRONT DESK + LOUNGE

Concept

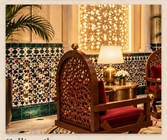

"In Islamic thought, paradise is a garden of shade, flowing water and light. This lobby offers the guest a glimpse of it."

Why Islamic. A hotel lobby is where a guest first meets a place. We wanted that first meeting to carry the warmth and hospitality of Islamic architecture: courtyards that welcome, light that is softened, and geometry that brings calm and order.

Why Andalusian. Among the Islamic traditions, Al-Andalus is where this architecture became most refined and most gentle. In the Nasrid palaces of the Alhambra in Granada, water, light and pattern are used not to impress but to welcome.

The lobby as a palace. We follow the same journey: from light into shade, beside flowing water, through an arcade, and into a calm domed hall. Glazed zellige below, carved stucco above and cedar overhead wrap the guest in the craft of Granada.

Andalusian elements & patterns

Zellige tiles
Geometric glazed tiles on the lower part of the walls.

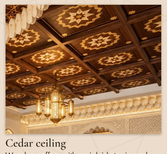

Sebka relief
Diamond-net carving in stucco above the arches.

Polylobed arch
Scalloped arch edge, used in the gateway and desk wall.

Muqarnas
Honeycomb vault cells in the dome and column tops.

Cedar ceiling
Wooden coffers with an inlaid star in each square.

Brass lattice
Pierced screen lit from behind in the desk arches.

Star medallion
Marble inlay in the floor at the centre of the hall.

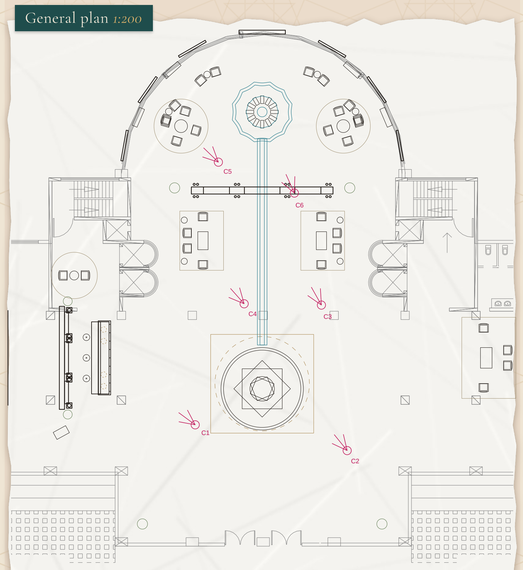

Jamuga chair
Andalusian X-frame chair with a carved arched back.

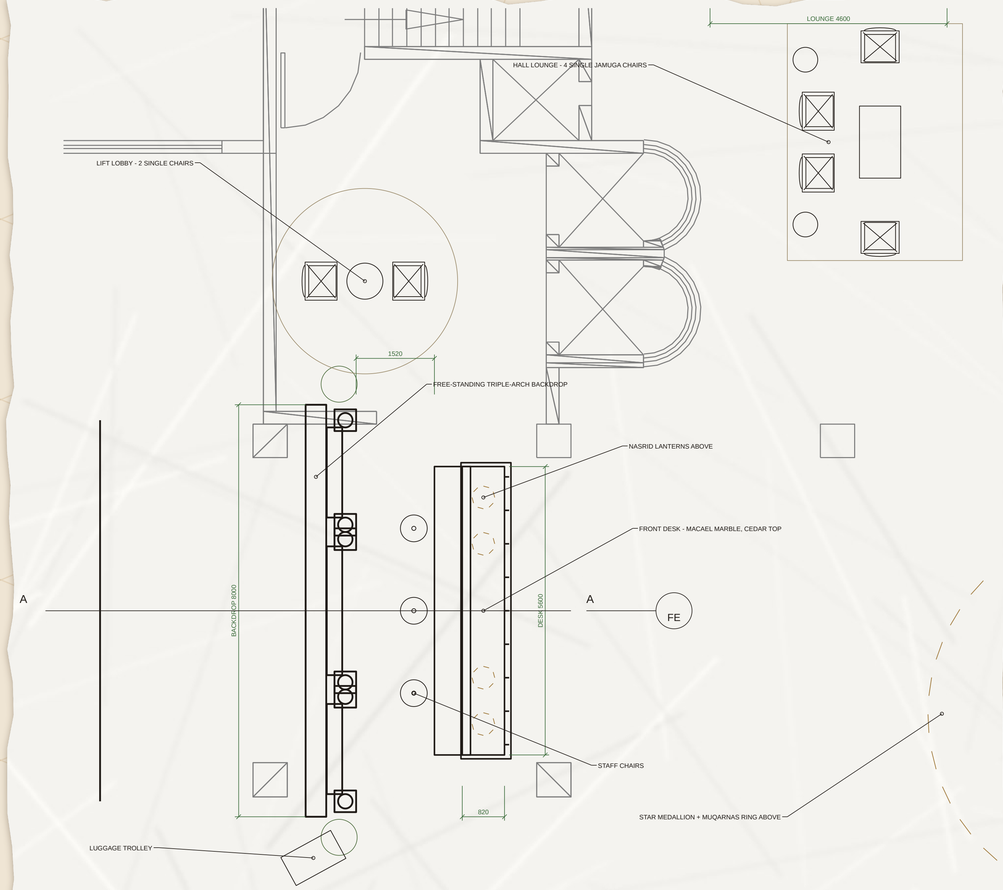

Blind arcade
Small scalloped arches with zellige on the desk front.
